The European Federation for Cosmetic Ingredients (EFfCI) published the Good Manufacturing Practice (GMP) guide to ensure quality and safety in the production of cosmetic ingredients.

The guides were created with the consideration of key aspects of the guidelines in the pharmaceutical industry. For manufacturers of cosmetic ingredients, the context and interested parties aligns with the concepts of GMP and the protection of consumer safety.

The certification scheme allows cosmetic ingredient suppliers to prove that their products have been prepared in conformance with the EFfCI GMP requirements. The certification also requires the supplier to have a valid ISO 9001 certificate that covers at a minimum all of the activities in the manufacture and supply of the cosmetic ingredients.

DQS is a recognized certifying body for the EFfCI GMP certification scheme and ready to help you achieve your goals through this certification as well.
